City introduces new map-based survey tool in conjunction with Comprehensive Plan

The City of Bristol Tennessee recently made available a new online map-based survey tool to engage and involve the community in providing input for the ongoing Comprehensive Plan.

Public participation is a vital component of the Comprehensive Plan process. “The city would like to have members of the community share their thoughts and ideas about planning what Bristol should become over the next 15, 20, or 30 years,” said Brian Rose, Director of Community Development. “The tool is fun to use and very intuitive. Just click the link, register, and then start creating your own map,” Rose continued. “Once you have completed the survey you can see what others have done as well.”

The map tool is now available online for citizens to provide information quickly and from the convenience of their own home or office. To access the map-based survey go to <https://map.social/Bristol>.

To find out more about the comprehensive plan go to <http://bristoltn.org/1665/Comprehensive-Plan>.

For more information about the new map-survey please contact Brian Rose at brose@bristoltn.org or call 423-989-5600 Ext. 2129.
