City announces Residential Utility Extension Incentive Program

The City of Bristol Tennessee has developed an incentive program that will help encourage residential development within the city limits. The incentive is offered in the form of City-provided water/sewer system materials which are available for any new construction of a major subdivision consisting of 3 or more lots.

The development incentive would be considered for new construction where city water and sanitary sewer mains are currently available.

Materials qualifying under the incentive program would be water pipe and valves that are 6 inches or larger and fire hydrants. Under the sanitary sewer portion of the plan, 8-inch or larger pipes and associated manholes would qualify. The developer would be responsible for installation and other material costs.

The process for applying for the incentive will be the subject of the City's next Community Development Listening Session being offered Monday, November 13, 2017 at noon in the Ewell Easley Annex Building at 104 8th Street.

The complete list of qualifications and the process for which to apply will be posted on the City's website on November 1, 2017.
